

New Mural Brightens TCF Center Wall Near People Mover

If you are entering the building from the 5th floor entrance from TCF Center's Rooftop Parking Lot, you may have the pleasure of seeing Detroit artist Lowell Boileau working on his mural. "Inbound/Outbound Detroit" connects visitors with the local car culture.

Lowell is a self-learned painter and internet media artist whose works can be seen all in exhibitions all over the Metro Detroit area, in places like the Detroit Culture Club, Farmington Hills City Hall, the Detroit Artist Market. He also exhibits in Chicago and Germany. He developed the novel Primary Color Micropointillist painting technique along with fellow artist Stephen Goodfellow that results in uniquely luminescent and richly colorful paintings by using only the three primary colors of yellow, red and blue.

Campus Party TechFest Comes to Detroit and TCF Center

Campus Party is the largest innovation and creativity experience in the world. With 83 editions in 15 countries and more than 3 million participants around the world, it is transforming the future.

"This event coming to TCF Center this August will be an opportunity for Detroit to become a global technology hub." said Claude Molinari, general manager TCF Center/ASM Global. "It will also be our venue's chance to prove to the world that our technology services are world class."

For 3 days and 2 nights, 24 hours of multidisciplinary activities in which students, communities, geeks, millennials, professionals, skill improvement seekers and institutions will meet to build the future using technology as a tool to change the world – consciously and responsibly. Participants will not only create, design and learn but interact with thousands of talents in new technologies and co-work with the Detroit community.

SECURITY IN TCF CENTER KEEPS EVENTS SAFE

Growing hazards to international travel and events has spurred security enhancements at TCF Center to reduce today's risks. A recent reorganization of security services will assure customers and visitors the most advanced and extensive protocols designed to keep events safe.

"TCF Center security is constantly working with local, state, federal and international law enforcement agencies to provide safe and peaceful opportunities for events and visitors in the venue," said Claude Molinari, general manager TCF Center/ASM Global. "From the Coast Guard and Customs and Border Patrol protecting our Canadian border, to the Detroit Police Department and every agency in between that contributes to surveillance and response, our venue's event security is comprehensive."

What's In Sight Must Be Right

Kudos to Gary Luchenbill, event tech, who worked hard over the last few months updating the Joe Louis glove display on the concourse. The display now brilliantly showcases the bronze cast sculpture of the boxing glove that delivered the Brown Bomber's knock out punch to Max Schmeling winning Louis international acclaim. Thanks Gary!

Thanks to everyone in housekeeping who helped organize waste materials for our waste audit by Iris Waste Management on February 19. The audit is a critical part of our sustainability certifications and we could not have done it without you! Job well done!

Thanks to Spencer O'Neal and his team for the quick ballroom turn around for NOI. Amazing job!

To improve the organization of the TCF Center security operations, several aspects of the department have been enhanced and reorganized. In-house security staff scheduling has been expanded to three shifts, each with supervisors dedicated to specific events and building security outposts. A new dispatch command center staffed with TCF Center security officers seven days a week, 365 a year has been created and the Closed-Circuit Television (CCTV) system expanded.

According to Molinari, "We operate a staffed, live-monitored command center 24/7, and we are now able to see almost everything happening around our 55-acre property. If we miss something, we can quickly review recorded video. The new system is quite comprehensive."
